

Zika: Still a Threat to Women and Infants

The Friends of the National Center on Birth Defects and Developmental Disabilities and the Zika Coalition invite you to:

Zika: Still a Threat to Women and Infants

Thursday, July 13, 2:00 PM
253 Russell Senate Office Building

Although it may not be in the headlines, the Zika virus still poses a very real threat to pregnant women and their infants. In the year since the first local transmission of Zika in the continental United States, public health officials, health care providers and the maternal and child health community have come together to fight this very real threat. Come to learn the very latest from the CDC and front-line health care personnel who are dealing with the Zika threat every day.

SPEAKERS INCLUDE:

Dr. Haywood L. Brown

President, American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Dr. Roberta DeBiasi

Chief of the Division of Pediatric Infectious Diseases and Co-Director of the Congenital Zika Program, Children's National Health System

Dr. Margaret Honein

Co-Lead, Pregnancy & Birth Defects Task Force, CDC's Zika Virus Response

Dr. Leana Wen

Health Commissioner, Baltimore City

The briefing will be moderated by Cindy Pellegrini, Senior Vice President for Public Policy and Government Affairs at the March of Dimes.

Thank you to honorary cohosts Senators Marco Rubio and Bill Nelson.

For more information or to RSVP, please contact Jaimie Vickery, Director of Federal Affairs at the March of Dimes, at jvickery@marchofdimes.org.